Efforts To Refloat Missouri Succeed; Stranded Vessel Moved To DrydockBattleship Is

15 Days Spent

(U. S. Staff Correspondent)ABORAD U. S. S. MISSOURI, NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 1.—The mighty Mo was refloated today and proudly reported back for Atlantic duty after 15 days "ashore" on a sandy shoal off Old Point Comfort, Va.The 45,000 ton battleship was freed at 7:00 EST after 14 tugboats and auxiliary craft pulled and pushed for an hour and 34 minutes.The Missouri then was towed by a navy tug into drydock at Norfolk. She passed astern the powerful Aircraft Carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt where Admiral W. H. P. Blandy was retiring as commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, happy with the news that the mighty Mo had come back.

Reports For Duty

Admiral Allen Smith, bossing salvage operations of the battleship, sent a signal to the commander of the Atlantic forces at 7:10 a. m. It tersely stated:
"Missouri reporting for duty with seven fathoms under her keel."Admiral Blandy, before he surrendered command of the Atlantic fleet to Admiral William M. Fecht-eler, commended the Missouri, the ships participating in her rescue, and all personnel, with a typical navy "well done."Admiral Smith attributed success of the fifth effort to refloat the Missouri to "20 per cent more coordination."Navy officials said that the Missouri, lightened by hundreds of tons, suffered no major damage while she lay helplessly upon the sandy shoals.

Three Minor Holes

A preliminary investigation showed there are three minor holes in her bottom from which wounds she leeked her oil life fluid.The salvage operation, described by competent navy sources as the most extensive of its kind in peacetime history, was reeled off without a single major casualty.One lad, identified as Ezra

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 1.—(INS)

—Dr. Karl T. Compton, one of the nation's foremost Atomic scientists, has warned that the United States should not regard development of the Hydrogen bomb as a guarantee of peace."Under existing world conditions," he declared, "it would be reckless and stupid not to make ready the most effective military weapons."But the former chairman of the defense department's research and development board indicated that the military effectiveness of the

Only Country Able For Task

"The United States is the only country with the equipment and the requisite amount of uranium and plutonium, together with the experience and know-how, to put the hydrogen bomb into immediate production."Britain certainly has not got the equipment and necessary supplies to make the bomb. But British physicists have some know-they will return to work if UMW

Chieftain John L. Lewis accepts
President Truman's proposal for a work week, beginning Monday.Over 96,000 rank and filers stayed at home in Pennsylvania,

West Virginia, Ohio, Alabama, Vir-

Dr. Burton Talks At Rose Avenue

P.T.A. Unit Holds Fathers' Night

Dr. Frank Burton, superintendent of New Castle public schools, was honor guest of the evening when Rose Avenue P.T.A. members held their meeting on Tuesday at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Samuel Rashid, president, welcomed the group and conducted business. Various reports were given by the committee chairmen, with Mrs. Horace Tressler reporting a membership of 309. Miss Lutton presented an informative account of the English conference she attended recently at Buffalo, New York.

Presents Report

The president then welcomed Dr. Burton, and stated that the entire unit was behind him and the school board in their efforts to obtain new schools for the city.

"I am glad you people want to hear this report," said Dr. Burton, "as things can be accomplished only by groups such as your unit here tonight."

Dr. Burton's report was reported in detail in a recent edition of The News, however he stressed the important fact that schools are needed immediately at Lincoln-Garfield, North street, and Oak street. "Our schools will be kept as modern as possible, with new equipment and lighting in all schools." Various repair work and a new administration building were proposed for the future.

Curriculum revisions in the junior and senior high schools would give students more of an opportunity to select courses needed for work in later life.

Salaries for teachers and professional employees is of primary importance, with extra pay for certain extra-curricular activities as well as for athletics.

A question and answer period followed the report, with parents asking Dr. Burton many of the questions about the school system which came to their minds. Mrs. Elizabeth Kleckner of the school board, special guest of the evening, said that she was inspired by the meeting conducted at Rose Avenue.

"Something shall surely be accomplished when groups meet in this manner."

Express Views

Harry Davis, a member of the unit, expressed the ideas of the entire group when he said, "We certainly need new schools in the city of New Castle, for what parents would send their children to a few of those we now have? As parents we should be alarmed and as citizens we should be ashamed of the buildings for education. We have poor physical plants in the town, but we can really be proud of our 'football' plant. We hope that at least a part of the superintendent's report will be used."

"Fathers' Night" proved to be the special feature for the evening's entertainment. Samuel Rashid, in his usual spirited manner, acted as master of ceremonies. He kept activities at a merry pace during the entire program, beginning by questioning the wives of the men in the program.

A hilarious program in three acts had been planned by the fathers, with the first act being a schoolroom scene. The usual bubble gum and bad boys put in their appearance. A second act showed what happens on a crowded street, followed by a "boxing match" with two teachers participating. Special music was provided by the musicians of local 27, under the leadership of Thomas Booher. It was free under the auspices of A. F. of M. and Local 27. Men in the program were E. Mooney, C. Rowe, M. Stafford, R. Good, T. Booher, H. Mack, L. Maxwell, T. McCann, H. Tressler, W. Mann and S. Rashid.

John Cornelius, principal, was presented with a gift from the men for his aid in the program. Delicious refreshments were served buffet style by the members of the social committee, with the table prettily decorated with flowers and Valentine appointments.

NO REPLIES YET ON COAL MOVE BY PRESIDENT

ebb because of the four-week strike of 90,000 miners and the three-day work week of nearly 400,000 others. He asked the parties:

1. To restore normal production for 70 days beginning Monday;

2. Failing that, to submit their eight months old contract dispute to a special three-man fact-finding panel which would recommend settlement terms.

Mr. Truman requested an answer to the first proposal by noon Saturday and to the second one by 5 p. m. the same day.

In advance of today's court hearing, UMW General Counsel Welly K. Hopkins filed a brief asking Judge Keech to dismiss Denham's petition.

Hopkins denied that the UMW's contract demands violate the Taft-Hartley law. At issue are provisions requiring the miners to work only when "able and willing," permitting Lewis to call "memorial" shutdowns, limiting welfare fund benefits to UMW members and the union shop.

In an accompany affidavit, Lewis told the court the operators have bargained "in bad faith" and "walked out" of negotiations with the union last October.

"suggested" his idle union members return to work. They refused and sent out roving pickets to close down more mines.

They also defied UMW district leaders who went into the coal fields and asked and rank and filers to go back to the pits.

Lewis is scheduled to appear today in Federal court in Washington to answer charges of unfair labor practices and later in the day has a negotiating session with northern and western coal operators.

SOME RETURN

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 1.—(INS)—A comparative handful of eastern soft coal miners, possibly influenced by President Truman's offer of a 70-day truce in the nation's coal fields, returned to work today.

And about 200 of them crossed the picket lines to do it. The almost unheard of action occurred at the Pennsylvania Coal and Coke Corporation mine at Galitzin, Pa., last night and again today.

Over 1,200 others, mainly at Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal Company mines in Indiana county, resumed production, making the number of idle in central Pennsylvania about 10,000 rank and filers.

BATTLESHIP IS FREED AT EARLY MORNING HOUR

was the only person hurt when the mighty Mo was freed today.

A 15-inch cable to one of the tugboats snapped and clipped Hoffman across the leg, but he received only a minor bruise.

The salvage operation began at 5:30 a. m. with a brisk 15-knot wind churning the seas in the darkness.

The Missouri, once moved, slid so swiftly through the special channel into the harbor stream that three of the 14 auxiliary craft rescuing her collided before they could get out of the battleship's way.

No heavy damage was sustained by any of the vessels.

Just as the Missouri slid softly into the historic channel in Norfolk, at a point close to where the Monitor and Merrimack fought it out in the war between the states, the admiral got the band into action.

And overhead mighty Mo's proud battleflag unfurled from the topmast much as it did the day she served as surrender spot for Japan.

SCOUTERS HONOR THOMAS PADEN

Carroll, vice-president; Frederick D. Coates, vice-president; Paul C. Reynolds, vice-president; Ivor Davis, treasurer; and Ernest D. Hawk, commissioner. Dr. J. Wesley Post served as chairman of the nominating committee.

The theme of the council annual meeting was built around the second National Jamboree which will be held at Valley Forge June 30 to July 6. A playlet depicting the scene at Valley Forge in the winter of 1777 and then followed by the scouts assembled there in 1950 was very effectively dramatized with Mayor John Haven as George Washington and the following scouts as members of the Continental army: H. I. Lamphier, Dale Clobus, John Panella, Charles Kelly, Joseph Elrod and A. L. Wilson, with Nick Cassillo serving as the narrator and Alan Ciamberlain, scoutmaster of Troop 3 with a group of scouts. The playlet was directed by Ernest D. Hawk, chairman of the jamboree committee. The closing ceremony, led by A. H. Mellor, was a dramatization of the "Star Spangled Banner" with the American flag and bombs bursting in air effect.

Mooney In Charge

Samuel A. Mooney, general chairman of the attendance committee, with the fine assistance of his wife, decorated the tables very beautifully with dish gardens and cut flowers. Rev. Thomas J. Jones, pastor of the Congregational church gave the invocation.

Abe Gonick, president of the Community Chest, was present and expressed his deep interest in the welfare of the Boy Scout program and extended the continued cooperation of the Community Chest.

That organization together with the Ellwood City Community Chest make available most of the needed funds for the Boy Scout program.

One of the outstanding accomplishments of the Lawrence County council during the past year was a fifty percent increase in boy enrollment over that of just one year ago. At the present time there are over 1200 boys enrolled in the various units throughout the council territory.

development of rocket missiles in World War II as an example of a military power's concentration on a single super-weapon.

Dr. Compton contended that Germany's over-emphasis in building the rocket missiles contributed to her defeat because the cost in money, manpower, and scientific effort forced the Nazis to neglect development of long-range artillery and other weapons.

most congress appropriate this year?

2 Should the construction of the super-weapon be accompanied by new and more determined efforts for a world agreement outlawing such missiles of mass destruction?

On the cost issue, indications are that it will be far below the two billion dollars which the first H-bombs cost.

Rep. Jackson (D) Wash., said the outlay would be small enough for the next year, at least, that it "will have no effect on the president's present budgetary plans".

Can "Juggle" Funds

Another atomic legislator said privately that the H-bomb can be built merely by the "juggling" of funds already appropriated in the current budget.

Still another, who declined to be quoted, agreed with the 100 million dollars estimated by atomic scientist Harold Urey. This source declared that no new "major" construction will be needed.

On the world control issue, at least some debate is shaping up. Congressional atomic chairman McMahon (D) Conn., said he will take the senate floor, probably this week, in the hope of touching off "nationwide discussion" of how to get world peace.

McMahon declined to say whether he will propose new and direct attempts to reach an atomic bomb control understanding with the Kremlin.

bers of the school boards in Pulaski and Wilmington townships, were present and were given assurance that in the event of the consolidation schools would be provided for the elementary pupils in their communities, who would not be forced to attend the consolidated school.

Another meeting, which is expected to be a final one, when decisions will be received from the districts affected, was called for February 28. In the meantime, the matter will be presented to the different boards of directors of the districts, who are expected to join in the consolidation, and they are expected to make a decision, one way or the other, in the matter.

Music Club Observes Golden Anniversary Tuesday Evening

Fifty successful years devoted to appreciation of the aesthetic qualities and cultural opportunities of music were commemorated Tuesday evening when members of the Music Club met in the Highland U. P. church.

At 6:30 a dinner was enjoyed in the church basement. Red carnations, smilax and white tapers decorated the attractive tables, the golden theme also being used.

Mrs. Paul Welsh presided, while Mrs. Irvine Ralph offered the invocation.

Mrs. Welsh expressed the group's appreciation to Mrs. George Strehler who was responsible for general arrangements and to Miss Anna Dietterle who was in charge of decorations. Gratitude was also given the Naomi Circle of Highland church that served the excellent dinner with Mrs. A. N. Berglund as leader.

Beginning with the first president, Mrs. Charles Greer up to the president at the present time, Mrs. H. W. Helmick, members have presented a series of public concerts, each one more successful than the last. Members have found mutual joy and achievement in their love for music and the creative expression which the "universal language" offers them in developing and perfecting their innate talents.

Mrs. Robert E. Fleming graciously presided in the hostess role and said, preceding the golden anniversary program, "Tonight is our night, we want to hear something about us" and Mrs. Marshall Matthey began reviewing the history of the club in an interesting manner, spiced with amusing references to the prevailing modes of style and popular fads in the opening year of the club's debut.

The club began as the Wednesday Morning Musical Club in 1900 under the leadership of Mrs. Charles Greer and held its first concert in the chapel of the YMCA. Especially amusing was the fact that the women at this time (the fortunate ones) were motoring to the club meetings in electric model cars at five mile per hour, humming the Blue Danube waltz, wearing leg o' mutton sleeves and feeling very stylish in their exaggerated pompadours, and resplendent in their velvets. The Gold Rush was in full swing. Miss Mary Jackson originated the idea of the Wednesday Morning Music Club, having invited ten ladies to organize into the club.

Among the famed honorary members of this leading cultural organization are Mrs. Sue Harvard Armstrong, known as the one of the world's great singers and Cath Edmundson, who is known both nationally and internationally for his brilliant organ compositions. An organ recital by Mr. Edmundson climaxed the bright success and unusual programs of the club.

Miss Gladys Rich another honorary member has also gained national recognition because of her outstanding musical ability. Worthy of comment is the fact that Mrs. Robert E. Fleming instituted the presentation of a music award to the high school student who has contributed outstanding work in music.

There are no living charter members. Mrs. J. Norman Martin having been the last charter member. Through the qualified leadership of Mrs. James W. Moorehead and the persistent efforts of the entire Music Club, members were privileged to have their first piano in 1941.

Life members in the organization include Mrs. Robert E. Fleming, Mrs. Jay L. Reed, Mrs. Paul Welsh, Mrs. E. O. Fankhauser and Miss Mary Clark. Miss May Hoyt has been an associate member for 48 years.

Superb artistry of the music club artists was present in the excellent program last night when artists played as though inspired, for the golden anniversary of the club.

Program included: History of Club, Mrs. Marshall Matthey; Suite Gothique (Boellman), Mrs. Paul Welsh; Miss Barbara Schulz; Mrs. Jay L. Reed; Mrs. S. Glenn McCracken; Stuzzoso, Mio Stuzzoso (Pergolesi); Wie bist du, Meine Königin (Brahms); My Johann (Grieg); Mrs. William J. Caldwell; Mrs. John F. Love, accompanist.

BEVERLY AUDRIA WEDS HARRY MOON

An impressive double ring ceremony united in marriage Miss Beverly Audria, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Audria, Main street, and Harry Moon, son of Mrs. Goldie Moon of Neshannock avenue. The young couple exchanged vows in the First United Brethren church of Crawford avenue on January 25 at 6:30 p. m. Rev. T. J. Yoder officiated at the wedding.

Given in marriage by her father, in a white gown of slipper satin, the bride was attractively attired with a fitted bodice with sheer nylon yoke edged with dainty lace. Special features of the dress were its long pointed sleeves, and charming double peplum edged with lace. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was caught up in a tiara of rhinestones and pearls. A white Bible topped with gardenias and streamers completed her costume.

Miss Mary Louise Audria, as her sister's maid of honor, wore a gown of aqua satin. Pretty features were its low neckline and fitted bodice. A bustle back decorated the full, graceful skirt. She wore a wrist corsage of red roses and gardenias, with yellow baby mums and gardenias in her hair.

Dave Swope, brother-in-law of the groom, served as best man. Ushering was Dick Stewart.

Mrs. Ellen Lockhart accompanied Miss Connie Drake as she sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly."

A reception was held for 70 guests at the Y. W. C. A. from 7 to 10 p. m. The young couple then left for a wedding trip to an unknown destination. They are now "at home" at the bride's parents' home on Main street.

Both attended local schools and Mrs. Moon is employed at the G. C. Murphy company. Mr. Moon is a mechanic at the Ford Motor Car company.

OPEN UP YOUR HEART

Medical science has made amazing strides in the past half century in the prevention and cure of disease. Typhoid fever is almost unknown, diphtheria and scarlet fever have been brought fairly well under control and considerable headway has been made in the treatment of tuberculosis.

But heart disease remains a killer. Some advance has been made in fighting the killer but there is need for concentrated effort. Rheumatic fever, high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, these have resisted thus far any efforts to reduce their toll of human lives.

For a number of years the American Heart Association has been organized and has done fine work with the funds at hand. Now it is proposed to ask the public to aid in the fight.

Today a campaign opens over the United States to raise six million dollars to fight heart disease, to finance further research, to aid treatment. Lawrence County is asked to aid in this fight.

All this month the opportunity to help in this fight is here. The dimes and dollars of millions of Americans will provide a war chest out of which will come the knowledge and equipment to curb this killer.

Open up your heart.

PEAK FOR PISTONS?

By present day standards Paul Mantz converted P-51 fighter plane could be considered obsolete. Nevertheless plane and pilot have established a new transcontinental record for piston-engined planes. The flight time of seven minutes less than five hours made aviation news.

Mantz, a stunt flier, has been the only one so far to deprecate the significance of his own efforts. He feels that his 500-odd-mile per hour average speed represents just about peak performance for gasoline-powered piston engines.

His unsuccessful effort to break his own record in an East-to-West flight which ended in failure in Texas would seem to bear him out. But limits on plane speeds and performance have a way of falling under the pressure of continuing air research and development programs.

There is no doubt that what is currently being witnessed in aviation is emergence of a new generation of planes. Air research has turned away from piston engines because jet and rocket propulsion units have proved their efficiency in catapulting experimental planes through the sonic barrier.

In a way, then, Paul Mantz' record-breaking flight may well be the swan song of a familiar piece of aviation equipment. Remarkable as the achievement was, it suffers by comparison with the out-of-this-world performance of such planes as the supersonic Bell X-1 and others.

MECHANICAL BRAINS

On the cover of a recent "new" magazine is an artist's—his name is Artzybasheff—impression of the most wonderful robot ever put together. He pictures the Mark III computing machine as a box full of wires and wheels.

From the ends two human wires extend in the blue and gold sleeves of an admiral. (That's to show the Navy is to get the machine). One hand holds a loop of paper tape being scanned from the box by a great eyeball. The other hand is punching a typewriter.

The typewriter is spewing out columns of what might be data on ballistics or aerodynamics.

This slaphappy picture is not as far-fetched as it sounds. A predecessor of the Harvard-built Mark III recently did a problem in uranium fission for Princeton University. The job took 103 hours. But it is estimated the same job would have taken a flesh-and-blood operator more than 100 years. The time could not have been shortened by putting 100 operators to work, because each part of the problem had to be done in sequence.

For the Navy this vastly complex and expensive robot will rattle off typed answer to all manner of problems fed into it. Or just loafing along it can grind out reams of mathematical tables. The things it does so closely resemble human thinking that some say it does think.

It has a memory and judges facts in the light of past experience. Its electrical circuits operate, psychiatrists say, much like the electrical circuits of the human brain. Dr. Claude Shannon of the Bell Laboratories is working on a calculator that can play chess.

Will such robots become more the masters than the servants of man? Hardly. They do mental drudgery as other machines lift the burden of physical drudgery. They promise to release all manner of creative imaginative forces that only human beings possess.

The word "Video" in Latin means "I see." But with the modern video lots of times you don't.

Home life might be made a beautiful thing if the occupants could be found in long enough to get training in it.

Recent reports of homicides committed by college students hardly shows that education is a crime deterrent.

It is charged Henry Wallace was responsible for the U. S. Chinese policy, which at least makes more sense than other "explanations."

WONDER IF NAZISM IS DEAD

A date that for years was an unbridled carnival of nationalist pride and bombast in Germany has passed into history. But the world yet wonders whether nazism is dead or still a potentially dangerous element in the affairs of Europe and the world.

It was on January 30, 1933, that Adolf Hitler accepted from the trembling hands of Paul von Hindenburg a mandate to take over Germany as chancellor, form a coalition cabinet of right-wing, anti-communist elements and start on the road of building the "Greater Reich."

Virtually Unnoticed

Dispatches from Berlin and Frankfurt said that his 17th anniversary of an event unique in the history of the world went virtually unnoticed.

One newspaper in the latter city mentioned it in an editorial. The purpose, however, simply was to charge that community authorities in eastern Germany are using the strong-arm methods of the vanished storm troops into submission.

Inevitably, speculation arose as to whether underground nazi extremist organizations celebrated the event in one manner or another.

The mysticism that Hitler exercised among the German people had a powerful and perhaps lasting effect. He drew upon all the old Teutonic legends for spine-chilling ceremonies on mountaintops or deep in caves, and up-to-date information indicates that many remnants of these theatrical displays still linger.

Close Watch Kept

Military and government officials from United States High Commissioner John J. McCloy down emphasize repeatedly that the closest watch is being kept against any real resurgence of nazism.

None has been able, however, to deny that the threat exists or even to disclaim entirely that extreme nationalism has been dispelled.

All will admit under close questioning that the average German, unhappy over his status as a completely vanquished individual and divided in his own mind over his future because of the east-west split, is at best an unknown quantity.

The use of democratic methods by allied occupation officials has

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

KEEP YOUNG OUTLOOK FOR CHILD'S SAKE

You and I know some young parents with several small children close in years together. Barring the physical and nervous strain on the mother, getting a family of from three to five children early and close together is usually of great advantage to the children. They gain much from one another growing up close in years. Parents are more adaptable ages. Parents are more adaptable ages. Parents are more adaptable ages.

It's wonderful when parents are still physically young when their children reach the teens. And these teen-agers, especially the girls, are very eager to have their parents keep young and act young. They dread suggestions of being old in speech and action of their parents who in keeping to see the grandparent and socially physically, mentally and socially alert. Youth and grandparent have alike to see the grandparent hopeful to see their outlook on life and affairs of the community nation and the world.

Gold Old Days

It must be depressing to teenagers to hear grandparents bemoaning the gold old days of yore or ranting on and on the dogs. How thing is going to dress when these youths must hear constant remarks of gloom and listen often to conversation between their parents and guests, that savors of despair.

For the children's sake we parents and grandparents not only need to cultivate an optimistic outlook and philosophy of life, we also need to discipline ourselves. Let us seem, because of mannerism, even older than we are. At five, fifty or sixty we naturally may overflow with exuberance and energy as we did at four or six. We may grow physically tired more often at forty than we did at ten or twenty. Almost surely we will grow more often weary at sixty than we did at forty.

But our greatest danger to ourselves is that we will think we're getting old.

If we think we are getting old whether at forty, fifty or sixty we tend to pity ourselves. We think it is all right to slouch as we sit, stand or walk. So pitying ourselves, we don't discipline ourselves to act alertly. Of course, it may take some effort. But why encourage our own laziness?

Develop Mannerisms

One of the easiest things for us to do is to develop mannerisms, such as frowning the face, shaking the head as we talk shrugging the shoulders, raising the eyebrows contorting the mouth, dropping the voice at the end of a sentence, drumming with the hand, finger or foot, or speaking in stereotyped words and phrases. You could add many more to this list. We are sure to be considered old if we often fold the arms, put the fingers of both hands together, or stand or walk with our hands behind the back.

Our children and grandchildren dislike to see these mannerisms in us. We could be more attractive to all younger persons if we strove to act as young as we are or even younger. Besides, we might be a bit more pleasing to ourselves.

DOING A LITTLE STAR GAZING

Washington Calling

(By Marquis Childs)

CAUSES BIG STIR IN EUROPE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—An event almost ignored here in this country has caused a tremendous stir in Europe. That is the failure of the two British firms with the low bids to get the contract for the transformers being ordered by the city of Seattle.

The award, for $751,000, was given to the General Electric Co. One lower bid came from an American company for $720,000. Two lower bids, one for $572,000 and one for $515,000, came from British companies. The British bidders would have had to absorb the 15 per cent duty when the transformers were delivered.

It is not hard to see why this has stirred a wave of skepticism in Europe over America's intentions. Paul Hoffman, the dynamic head of the European Cooperation Administration, has been preaching the necessity for Britain and the rest of Europe to concentrate on sending imports to this country.

So two British firms make an all-out effort. They make detailed bids as called for by the municipality of Seattle. They cut costs to the bone.

Affair Is Investigated

And what happens? An American firm that was not even the low bidder got the contract. ECA had a representative look into this and the representative reported back informally—and somewhat vaguely—that the city was justified in accepting the bid offered.

ECA has, of course, no authority in the matter. There is nothing that Hoffman and his allies and adherents can do except preach. Under the "Buy America" law, no federal contract can be awarded if a single penny is to go to a foreign firm.

This last has, incidentally, been a source of considerable unhappiness to the Canadians. They had pointed out that it would greatly reduce their dollar shortage if the United States would buy even a small fraction of the arms for the military aid program in Canada. But with the firm insistence of American suppliers that the United States can produce everything needed, the answer was no.

Rather Lame Answer

The answers ECA has been able to make are rather lame. This comes at an extremely embarrassing moment, for Hoffman has gone to Paris to talk hard economic facts with the Europeans in ECA. It hits hardest in Britain, where a critical election campaign is on. For at least two reasons, the British press has not played up the Seattle business.

One obvious reason is that it would tend to give aid and comfort to the British Labor party, and the press is predominantly conservative. The Laborites could, for such an example of competitive free enterprise. They could ask, with perhaps some embarrassment, to their opposition, whether this

THE TWINKLE

When Adam was put out to dry, God must have said: "A twinkling eye
Will much improve him, I believe."
It did; and so 'twas done for Eve.

And ever since the race began
The twinkle has belonged to man.
God's brightest last bestowal
Intended to improve us all.

'Tis obvious that all should try
To keep that twinkle in the eye.
Because when it is missing, we
Are not what God meant us to be.

About The Ewing Story

(By HOLMES ALEXANDER)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 1.—No man, except under oath, is bound to tell the whole and exact truth about himself—but in public life it hardly ever pays to falsify, no matter how innocently. When a public official indulges in make-believe, it's dollars to doughnuts that he gets caught in the act and is made to look very foolish indeed.

I have in mind Oscar Ross (Jack) Ewing, administrator of the Federal Security Agency, who is not a bad fellow at all. But for several years now Mr. Ewing has been playing the hero of a little dream world which exists only within his own imagination. He's been telling any reporter who asks him that he rose "from rags to riches" and that's why his heart goes out to people in need of Federalized welfare. To be specific, Mr. Ewing once told reporters in the course of an interview:

"I have an intense feeling for the underprivileged because that's where I began."

Was Rather Privileged

But the truth is, as a little research soon shows, that Mr. Ewing "began" in rather privileged surroundings, where there were no "rags" at all. He rose to "riches" partly through matrimony and partly by making very good use of the influences which always attend wealth and social position.

He was born in Greensburg, a rural town in Indiana, where his father owned a home, a store and a farm which was worked by "hired hands". One of Mr. Ewing's uncles was the local judge. Two other uncles were prominent lawyers. His family were local aristocrats in the best sense of the term. He had no less than 53 first cousins in Decatur County—a pretty good insulation against feelings of insecurity.

All this, I prefer to think, is something a man should be proud of—so why does Mr. Ewing try to cover it up? For one thing, perhaps, because it still pays off in politics to cultivate the "up from slavery" legend, especially when giving away public moneys as head of the Federal Security Agency.

Could Be Another Reason

There could be another reason. Mr. Ewing, now well-established as a presidential brain-truster, is inevitably being compared with the late Harry Hopkins, prince of all brain-trusters. Hopkins used to be fond of referring to himself as "the son of a poor Iowa harness-maker". It could be that Mr. Ewing is subconsciously pretending to Hopkins' low beginnings while aspiring to Hopkins' final status as a Lord of the Land of public largesse and an intimate White House advisor.

At 26, while still a young struggler in the law business, Ewing married a lady whose father was the late Samuel S. Dennis of New Jersey. This would not be worth noting except that Ewing has re-counted for publication the alleged hardships of his early married life. But his father-in-law, according to the Who's Who volumes of those years, was President of the Howard Savings Institution of Newark, N. J., director of the Prudential Insurance company of America, the National Newark & Essex Banking company, plus some railroads and other financial institutions.

In Wall Street Firm

Shortly after leaving the Army in World War I (he was a captain stationed in Washington), Ewing joined the famed Wall Street firm of Charles Evans Hughes, later chief justice. Ewing got the job when an in-law gave him a letter of introduction to Arthur C. Rounds, one of the Hughes partners.

Again, there is nothing to be ashamed of in all this. Why does Ewing cling to the "rags to riches" theme?

It could be, I think, because Ewing prefers to be known in public life as a do-gooder welfare worker who has accidentally landed in politics. Yet there is nothing accidental about it. Ewing spent most of his mature years as a Wall Street lawyer in the laudable pursuit of money. In 1940 he became a headquarters worker and generous campaign contributor for Mr. Roosevelt's third term election. Ewing's reward was the position of vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee (1942-47). From here he advanced to the post of Federal Security Administrator. It was a well-deserved political plum.

Such are the realities of Mr. Ewing's career. They need no apology, no glamorizing. Yet Mr. Ewing has created himself this "rags to riches" dream world. Politicians are funny people.

Looking At Life

By ERICH BRANDEIS

We don't hear as much about juvenile delinquency as we used to.

Not that children have become any better. Children have always been children and always will be. But it is just possible that parents have come to the conclusion that it is not juvenile, but parental, delinquency that is the sore in our life. Being a born optimist, I think that, having come to that conclusion, a lot of parents have learned to blame themselves for their offspring's wrong-doings rather than to place the burden on the youngsters.

Some time ago I read a lovely story of which, unfortunately, I have forgotten the source and the details.

I think, however, it was one of Margaret Sangster's stories, and I am almost sure it was called "Paradise in a Backyard."

It was about a rheumatic old man and a boy.

The man crippled and hardly able to walk, had a beautiful little garden in back of his ramshackle old house.

He nursed that garden with exquisite care and it was a lovely sight to see.

A boy who lived in the neighborhood often visited the old man and admired the garden.

One day he asked the man how he managed to produce such wonderful flowers in ground that seemed so unfit for such profusion.

"Oh, that is simple," said the old man. "Seed will grow if you can make it want to grow."

My apologies to Margaret Sangster for any inaccuracies in my retelling of her story. But it will do for my purpose.

"Seed will grow if you can make it WANT to grow."

So it is with children.

Children will be good if you make them WANT to be good.

What are children but the ground in which the seeds of adolescence and manhood or womanhood are sown?

Neglect a piece of ground, and you will have nothing but weeds. Give it tender care, cultivate it, nourish it, and you will have a beautiful garden.

Invent Soil Gadget
To Aid In Farming

ITHACA, N. Y.—(INS)—Two versatile soil conservationists at Cornell University, Hugh Wilson and Harry Kerr, have invented a gadget to demonstrate the value of good soil management.

Their invention has been dubbed the "one-armed bandit" because it looks like a cross between a slot machine and a roulette wheel.

But it had proved an effective teaching device to let farmers know if their cropping practices are "robbing" the soil.

The "bandit" is in two parts: one, a chart which determines land use capability and the other an analyzer consisting of four concentric circles. It can set up a possible 768 combinations and a flashing green, yellow, or red light indicates whether or not a favorable soil balance is being maintained.

New Electric Brain
Solves Problems Of Industry With Ease

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(INS)—A giant three-ton electric "brain"—the result of 10 years of research—that skips arithmetic in solving complicated industrial problems was unveiled publicly today for the first time.

The machine is technically known as a general purpose electric analog computer, but has been nicknamed the "anacom."

Two Westinghouse Electric corporation engineers, J. T. Carleton and Dr. E. L. Harder—described the new machine in a paper presented at the winter meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

They said that the "brain" behaves electrically the same as—or "imitates"—the equipment being studied, instead of solving a problem by mathematics. In this way the machine "learns" the answer by "doing."

The mechanical mind is housed in 13 sprawling cabinets each seven feet in height and has 25 miles of wire and 2,500 electrical switches and contacts making up its "nerve ends."

The two engineers said that in two weeks it solved one problem that would have taken more than two years by human calculations. So far it has answered 43 different technical questions that involved a total of 141 distinct problems.

They predicted a brilliant future for the machine in solving problems involved in the design of gas turbine controls, guided missiles, railroad car performance, and aerodynamic design, among others.

Assassination Of Nizam Fails

NEW DELHI, INDIA—Riots, celebrations and an abortive attempt to assassinate the Nizam of Hyderabad marked the day as India proclaimed itself an independent republic and installed its first president. Reports from Hyderabad said a Hindu fanatic tossed a hand grenade at the Nizam's car, but the grenade failed to explode.

Lawyer Claims Big
Reward For Return
Of Aga Khan Jewels

MARSEILLE, Feb. 1.—(INS)—A Marseille lawyer claimed Tuesday he had arranged the mysterious return of jewels stolen from the Aga Khan, and a free-for-all appeared in the making for the more than $57,000 in rewards.

Lawyer Jean Chippie said he had advised the thieves to return the $600,000 in gems taken from the Aga and his wife in a tommy-gun holdup last August 3 near Cannes. Then, he said, he acted as intermediary for them with police, over a drink of pastis (absinthe and water).

Most of the jewels were left on a doorstep of mobile police headquarters last Thursday night. Seven persons are under arrest in connection with the theft and two others are still sought.

The Aga, last reported in Bombay, had offered a reward of 5,000,000 francs (about $14,285). Lloyd of London, which underwrote insurance of the jewels, offered a 15,000,000 franc reward.

Police listed the possible claimants as Chippie, themselves, and even the gangsters.

THOUSANDS SAY CERTA-VIN
WORKS INCHES OF BLOAT
OUT OF UPSET STOMACHS

Great Compound Has Astonishing Action on Swollen, Gassy Stomach Organs and Supplies Body With Essential Vitamin B and Iron

At the present time the sale of Certa-Vin, here in the city of New Castle and general section, stands at the highest point in ITS HISTORY! Leading druggists are amazed at this immense demand and say that nothing like it has ever been seen here before. However, this great sale is all due to one thing, that is, the astounding action of this remarkable medicine upon the stomach. It is the great relief it brings which causes crowds to flock in for Certa-Vin wherever it is introduced.

AWFUL BLOATING

For instance, consider the amazing action of Certa-Vin in cases of gassy stomach. This is a condition that afflicts thousands. And it is a horrible condition, as any of its poor victims will tell you! Many people are so bad off they can't go to the finest restaurant and eat a meal—can't even eat the most wholesome of home-cooked food!—without being in misery afterward. They bloat and swell until they can hardly breathe. Heart palpitates wildly from gas pressure. They belch up a horrible sour substance, known as "water brash". Sometimes this terrible "water brash" rises into throat and mouth like a regular fountain. So bitter it almost causes STRANGULATION. Awful gas pains come in stomach and chest. The abdomen sometimes feels sore CON- STANTLY from continual gas and bloat pressure. And all night long this misery continues, so sleep is next to impossible. Some poor sufferers feel like they are about to smother every time they lie down in bed to try to sleep. They have to rise up to get their breath back. Others have such awful gas pains in chest they can't lie on EITHER SIDE. So all night long they suffer.

AMAZING RELIEF

Truthfully it can be said, as it has been said so often: "No great or misery hath any man than he with an upset stomach!" And that is why so many people are praising CERTA-VIN. This "Amazing New Medicine" is helping thousands of sufferers such as we have de-

Some of the leading druggists of this city say no medicine in history has ever been so widely endorsed as Certa-Vin. Published below are JUST A FEW of the many statements received here about this "Amazing New Medicine":

WAIST REDUCED 7 INCHES
"Certa-Vin worked so much gas and bloat from me that my waistline has gone down seven inches. Now I feel fine."

OH, WHAT RELIEF!
"I swelled with gas until I could hardly breathe. Couldn't sleep, in fact had horrible nights. Then I got Certa-Vin. Oh! What relief! It worked so much gas from me that my stomach reduced 4 inches. Can breathe freely now. Can sleep soundly."

INCHES OF GAS GOES
"Was so full of gas I was afraid I'd burst. Sour bitter substance rose up in my throat from my upset stomach after meals. I got Certa-Vin, and it worked inches of gas and bloat from me. Waistline is way down now. Meals are a pleasure. I praise Certa-Vin to the sky."

scribed above. It helps work that awful gas and bloat out of you, reducing your gas-swollen waistline—often by inches!—in a few days' time! (Read actual statements accompanying this announcement.) Then your awful gas pains, breathless smothering, wild heart palpitation from gas are relieved. You can sleep! You can eat! You can begin to feel like SOME OTHER PERSON!

VITAMIN B AND IRON

And Certa-Vin not only relieves gassy stomachs. It does FAR MORE! Remember—this is an astounding medicine of over 10 INGREDIENTS. So it accomplishes several things inside you all at once. It gives your body a supply of Vitamin B and Iron; thus it tones your system, builds red blood cells and gives you renewed energy. Weak, miserable people often feel like different men and women in a few days time.

REASONABLE PRICE

The cost of CERTA-VIN is reasonable. In every market where it is introduced, it quickly becomes the fastest-selling medicine in that city. It does this almost without exception. As a result of this large sales volume, we are able to sell you Certa-Vin at a reasonable price. Despite its many costly ingredients, you can actually take this amazing medicine for just a few cents per day. So don't go on suffering. Go to the drug store—NOW—and get Certa-Vin.

Psychiatrist Will Examine Slayer Of College Secretary

LANCASTER, Pa., Feb. 1.—(INS)—A prominent Philadelphia psychiatrist will examine Edward L. Gibbs, confessed slayer of a Franklin and Marshall college stenographer, within the next two weeks, officials said.

Dr. Edward A. Strecker has been hired by the defense to determine whether Gibbs was sane on January 10 when he choked and bludgeoned the girl to death on a lonely road two miles south of Lancaster.

W. Hensel Brown, who will defend Gibbs at the March trial, was granted permission last week to engage a psychiatrist.

Gibbs is now in Lancaster county prison. He was termed a "good prisoner" by Warden Walter Foust. Dr. Strecker, described as one of the world's foremost psychiatrists, is professor of psychiatry and chairman of the Department of medicine at the University of Pennsylvania.

UN Leader Forsees
Peace In Future

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 1.—(INS)—United Nations Diplomat Dr. Ralph Bunche thinks the UN has a "reasonable prospect of preserving peace."

The high-ranking Negro official told a large, unsegregated audience in Raleigh's Memorial auditorium that:

"I don't see any reason to be alarmed with regard to the prospect of peace."

Bunche said he was speaking as "an American rather than a UN official." He said:

A large part of the world looks to the United States not only for strength but for a convincing demonstration, a practical demonstration, that the American way of life is workable and viable.

Bunche declared that race relations are improving in the south but remain in a "dangerous" state and are a "grave weakness in our democratic armor."

The cost of constructing Grand Central station in New York City totaled more than $75,000,000.

Historic Medical Highlights—No. 3

BARBER SHOP SURGERY

MIDDLE-AGES medical practice was subject to some peculiar conditions. One of them was the fact that barbers were generally used for "blood-letting", a practice then considered beneficial. Religious orders—particularly the Benedictines—largely controlled medicine and pharmacy, but were forbidden to draw blood—hence, the barber shop surgery. The familiar barber pole traces its origin back to those times . . . it represented the application of bandages and advertised the service of bleeding.

Present-day pharmacy is a specialized professional branch of a specialized field, designed to render service to exacting professional standards. That is why quality is assured when you fill drug needs here.

Prosperity Of Next Generation Depends Much On Conservation

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Feb. 1.—(INS)—Forests and Waters Secretary M. F. Draemel has warned that the prosperity of the next generation depends on current conservation practices.

Speaking to members of the Wilkes-Barre Rotary club, Draemel said natural resources form the foundation of our economy.

"It seems obvious that if there is to be a basis for the prosperity of the next generation, energetic conservation of our natural resources is necessary today," he declared.

"I say today for it takes time for such conservation measures as may be taken now to develop or mature to the point where they give an economic return," he added.

Draemel cited as evidence of the broad scope of conservation needs the various types which have been advocated, including water, soil, forests and wildlife.

"But of these, the key to all conservation is water conservation," he declared. "Water is the eroding agent which carries the life sustaining top soil to the stream and then on to the sea where it is lost forever."

World Congress Of Baptists In July

CLEVELAND, Feb. 1.—(INS)—Some 30,000 Baptists from all parts of the globe are expected to attend the eighth world congress of the Baptist World Alliance to be held in Cleveland next July.

Plans to accommodate them are already underway, according to a report presented last night by Dr. Arnold T. Ohn, of Washington, executive secretary of the alliance.

President Truman, a Baptist, has already accepted an invitation to address the opening meeting scheduled for July 22, Dr. Ohn said, "if affairs of state permit."

Some 17,000,000 members from 60 countries are represented by the alliance.

POLIO FOUNDATION AID IS LAUDED

"Thanks Mr. Hanna and to the People of Lawrence county for their contributions to the March of Dimes and the Polio Foundation. It was their dimes that made it possible for me to walk again."

Those are the words of twelve-year-old Carol Deal as she visited with William Hanna in his office in the Federal Building.

Carol is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur C. Deal, R.D. 1, New Castle. She was taken ill with polio on November 10, 1949. For 21 days she lay in a private room in the isolation ward of the Ellwood City hospital, paralysis striking her internally and in the right leg. Today medical science has effected nearly 100 percent recovery.

A student in the seventh grade at Shenango high school, she has been able to catch up to her roommates in school work, and is doing very well.

In a statement to The News, Mrs. Deal said they are only average folks and the Polio Foundation was a friend in time of need. She thanked the people of our county for their aid, and urged everyone to contribute to the March of Dimes, saying, "No one ever knows when their children will be taken ill and need the aid of the Polio Foundation." She thanks the ministers and congregations of the various denominations for their prayers and aid in an hour of tribulation.

Help those less fortunate than you. Contribute to the March of Dimes.

Steel Jaw Replaces Cancer Eaten Member

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 1.—(INS)—A successful operation in which a patient was given a new steel jaw to replace one which was ridicled with cancer was disclosed Tuesday by surgeons at the American Oncologic hospital in Philadelphia.

The surgery was done entirely inside the mouth, without a visible scar, and the patient—a 38-year-old New Jersey man—"has an excellent chance of not having a recurrence of the disease," doctors said.

The surgeons, who would not permit use of their names, explained the patient had a malignant cancer of the bone. They treated it with doses of X-ray for three months before deciding on surgery.

A New York firm made a duplicate of the diseased jaw from vitallium, a lightweight metal. The operation took three hours.

The metal jaw was put in place and secured with steel screws. Muscles and tissues were sewn into normal position and the jaw encased in the normal tissue.

The patient's head was kept immobile for seven weeks after the operation, following which he was permitted to chew certain foods and otherwise use the jaw normally.

Archeological Expert Assumes Duties In East

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—(INS)—Donald E. McCown, field director of the joint archeological expedition to Nippur, ancient Sumerian city in the Near East where civilization was first developed, will fly to Baghdad Thursday to assume his post.

The expedition, first major post-war archeological excavation in the Near East, is being conducted by the University of Chicago and the University of Pennsylvania.

The Nippur excavation was started 52 years ago in the early days of archeology by the University of Pennsylvania, and the joint operation was begun in 1948 at two sites, the Temple of Enlil, a paramount god of the Sumerian country, and the quarters of the scribes which date back to 1800 or 1900 B. C.

Digging in November and December at Nippur, the most important city in Mesopotamia from 4,000 to 5,000 B. C. until about 2,000 B. C., uncovered some of mankind's earliest writing, cuneiform, which began about 3,000 B. C.

McCown, associate professor of archeology at the University of Chicago, was ill when the diggings began.

Railroad To Restore Pre-War Services In Smaller Shipments

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 1.—(INS)—The Pennsylvania Railroad has announced it will restore fast merchandise freight service of less-than-carload freight.

Walter S. Franklin, president of the PRR, said their aim is to fully restore the high type of service provided by the Pennsylvania before the war and to improve it wherever possible.

Such service, he said, is immediately available to merchandise shippers.

The installation of more than 500 large box cars, equipped for merchandise and package freight, augmented by a door-to-door pick-up service will improve service to communities surrounding the larger cities.

MORE BUILDING

NEW YORK—A buyer's market in construction and the start of the federal low-rent housing program will stimulate greater production of quality building materials during 1950. R. E. JAMESTOWN, N. D., Feb. 1.—(INS)—Reconnaissance pilots who gunned their planes over tree tops to determine the condition of 500 to 600 snowbound farm families in the Dakotas reported the presence of many distress signals.

The reconnaissance airmen said they saw "an amazing number" of distress signals from snowbound farm homes.

Lions Hear Of Red Cross Work

Deshon Hospital Field Director Speaks

Miss Gay Guthrie, Field Director at the Deshon Veterans Hospital, at Butler, gave New Castle Lions an interesting picture of the work the Red Cross is carrying on in the Veterans Hospitals as a part of its peacetime program, when she addressed the club at their weekly luncheon meeting in The Castleton, Tuesday noon.

Miss Guthrie told of the inception of the Red Cross, which was organized as a result of the observations of a Swiss citizen, Henri Dunant, who was appalled at the indifference of European nations to the fate of those who fell on the field of battle.

Dunant was a witness to the battle of Solferino, between the French and Austrians, and as the armies moved on, left 40,000 dead and wounded there.

Dunant Is Founder

Mr. Dunant gathered the women of that area and helped to take care of the wounded and saw to it that the dead were buried.

He wrote a book on these observations, suggesting that a neutral organization be formed to care for the wounded. At his own expense, he visited various European countries promoting this idea, which resulted in the Treaty of Geneva being signed in 1863.

President Lincoln sent observers to the Geneva conferences, when the Red Cross was formed and in President Arthur's term, the United States became a member.

Clara Barton, famous nurse during the Civil War, also promoted the idea immediately following the close of the civil war.

Works In Hospitals

While the Red Cross served during the Spanish American War, it was not until World War One, that it really became a great organization in this country, and following its close, the Red Cross broadened its field of endeavor, stressing assistance to distressed veterans.

At Deshon hospital, the Camp and Hospital committee from 22 chapters in the area assists in the hospital. The Grey Ladies from these chapters, and volunteer nurses serve in the hospital, assisting bedfast patients, where the regular hospital nurses leave off. They also provide recreation, and articles for the comfort of these men, which are not furnished by the government. In this they are assisted by the American Legion, V.F.W., and kindred organizations.

Jack Butz, of New Castle was a guest at Tuesday's luncheon meeting.

WINNING AN INDIFFERENT MAN

"The one man whom I want for a husband has recently become very neglectful and I am afraid he is tiring of me. To win him back I am being as compliant as possible, breaking for him dates with others and trying not to resist his embraces—as I did early in our friendship, when he deserved them much more than he has lately. Have you any advice to how I can win him back?"

Answer: Unwittingly, you have given me the key to your problem—in your revelation that he was more devoted in the days when you resisted his embraces. In other words, in those days—as the slang expression puts it—you "played hard to get"—and that strategy was successful. Try it again and it's ten to one he'll be pursuing you again as avidly as he did then. He is evidently of the preponderant type that is repelled by girls who are too compliant, too generous with their embraces. And he is no doubt a young man who in his mind brags to himself that there are "better fish in the sea than have ever been caught." Such is youth.

Middle-aged men are seldom, if ever, won by indifference. To them life seems too short for such struggles and battles. Their nerves are too worn to endure them. They have lost their conceit in matters of the heart unless they are very rich and are fools enough to believe that their personalities, rather than their gold, attracts the opposite sex.

Question: If a traveling suit is worn by the bride, what kind of corsage should she have and who should buy it?

Answer: Flowers that harmonize in color with the color of her suit. They should be supplied by the bridegroom.

Present your problems to Miss Markel who will promptly send personal replies to questions from readers enclosing stamped addressed envelopes.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

"Red Mike" Hylan, one-time mayor of Manhattan, possibly is remembered best for the time he assured Queen Marie of Rumania,

"You said a mouthful, Queen."

People who were privileged to hear him speak in public remember other hilarious moments in his career, however. Hylan read the speeches that had been written for him in a dead-pan monotone, and often gave conclusive evidence that he hadn't even bothered to skim through them previously.

There was the time, for instance, when he read in the script, "This reminds me of a story I always like to tell," went on to narrate the anecdote, put down the speech and laughed till his glasses fell off. Another evening, at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, he read out "That's the way we do things under the flag of red, white and blue." Here the mayor reached the bottom of a page, stopped until he had flipped it over, fumbled for his place, and concluded triumphantly, with "blue."

Item Veto Power For President Is Bitterly Opposed

Representative Brands Proposed Powers Unconstitutional

By RAYMOND WILCOVE (U.S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Rep. Cannon (D) Mo., has announced his "last-ditch" opposition to an administration proposal that Congress give President Truman an item-by-item veto on appropriations.

The sponsor of Congress' first omnibus appropriation bill, designed to wrap up into one package funds for the entire government, said flatly: "I'm against it."

The chairman of the House Appropriations committee took cognizance of "feelers" being extended by administration leaders on the possibility of attaching an item veto "rider" to the giant funds bill.

The idea behind the proposal was to give the president the opportunity to veto individual parts of the omnibus bill without being forced to reject the entire measure with the consequent threat of tying up the government's activities.

In the past, Congress has enacted a dozen or more appropriation bills to cover governmental operations and presidents have not hesitated on occasions to veto individual measures.

Cannon attacked the proposal on two scores. He stated: "In the first place, it's unconstitutional. In the second, it would give the executive supreme power over the legislative branch."

"If he could veto individual items in an appropriation bill, he could hold a club over Congress. He could tell members whose projects were threatened with a veto what to do unless they went along with his program. Congress would not stand for it."

There have been many who have urged for years that the president be given an item veto on appropriations. The general consensus is that a constitutional amendment would be needed.

However, Cannon's decision to press for enactment of an omnibus appropriation bill has caused a reshuffling of thinking in some administration quarters. The question was raised whether the president could not be given this authority by law.

Administration lawyers are apparently looking into this. In the meantime, no firm decision has yet been reached in certain quarters on Capitol Hill whether to go ahead with the omnibus bill.

Atomic Energy Work Hazards Eliminated, Commission Reports

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(INS)—It isn't as dangerous to handle deadly radioactive A-bomb materials as it is to climb a stepladder.

The Atomic Energy commission in its semi-annual report says no serious radiation injuries have been suffered by contractors' employees. It adds:

"On the other hand, serious injuries were caused by unsafe practices of scaffolding, improper operation of motor vehicles, disregard of safety regulation in operating machinery and careless handling of office equipment."

The AEC report disclosed that many of the wartime hazards of atomic energy work have been eliminated.

During the war, "critical" assemblies of A-bomb materials were made by hand, by heroic scientists who hadn't time to stop and invent safer methods. They realized they were risking an atomic explosion every time.

Now, due to post-war developments, mechanisms are available which assure safety if any thing goes wrong.

The new machines have automatic tripping devices which cause the fissionable material to be rapidly dissembled to a safe arrangement if any part fails, or if the reaction proceeds too quickly toward the critical stage.

All personnel are at least one-fifth of a mile from the assembly laboratory, from which safety point they view the operation on television.

"Assignment; America

By INEZ ROBB

(Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.) (Distributed By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—So I was standing in the lobby of the Carlton hotel, chatting with an old friend, when the elevator doors clanged open and out stepped—no, swept—this elderly gentleman.

The face beneath a thatch of white hair was one of saintly resignation touched with good will toward man. Sharp eyes beneath massive brows swept the lobby and lighted upon my friend.

With the stately air of a Roman senator he approached her, bowed over her hand with courtly, old-fashioned grace and said in courtly, old-fashioned prose, that it had been too, too, long since last they met.

Been Very Busy "I have been very busy," he said in confidential tones. My friend's lips twitched.

"Yes, John I understand," she said. "But you were very kind to take the time to send those lovely roses to my child when she made her debut. That was very thoughtful of you."

The face of the old gentleman took on a look of wistful benevolence, and his voice the rounded periods of a great Shakespearean ham in—say—"King Lear."

"My duties at the time were so heavy that they did not permit of my attendance at the fete," he said. "But I was delighted to send a token of my esteem."

Even More Delighted "But I was even more delighted," he continued, "when I met your child a few days later when she came in here for luncheon."

The leonine head bowed for a split second in reverend memory, and then the benign old man looked at my friend and said in a voice filled with restrained emotion:

"What a pearl is such a child! Beyond the price of rarest gems, of pearls and rubies and their kindred ilk. In such a child, my dear, you possess jewels beyond compare."

My friend, who had just been confessing to me that she would have strangled her beloved jewel with her bare hands if the Christmas vacation and the debutante whoopee hadn't ended ten days earlier, swallowed twice and murmured:

"You are so right, John." Then she added sociably, "But, no one ever sees you any more."

Shook Head Sadly The elderly gentleman shook his great white head sadly. His eagle eyes under their great brows looked heavenward as witness to his righteousness and in a tone of martyred benignity, he said with infinite pathos:

"The people are pushing me around until I have no time to see my friends. I am being pushed—"

It was at this point that I, who had taken no part in the conversation up to that time, broke into maniacal laughter. Like Little Audrey, I just laughed and laughed.

My friend laughed, too. "Really, now, John," she said, "who is pushing whom?"

A grin began to creep over the big, square, heavy face. Then John L. Lewis threw back his head and chuckled.

He was still chuckling when he bowed over our hands with the ruffles and flourishes of a Lord Chesterfield and departed.

"He's always like that with women and children," my friend explained. "He always treats them with the old-fashioned politeness and deference of a grand seigneur. It always amazes people who only see those fright masks he wears for the newspaper photographers."

"I suppose he was just now going out to eat a couple of coal operators?" I asked.

"Probably," she agreed. "Do you suppose the operators might get further with the great John L. if they put their women and children in the board rooms to argue their cause?" I asked.

My friend looked thoughtful. "It's an idea," she agreed. "Gents of the coal industry: Take it away!"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(INS)—The Sun Oil company asked Federal court today to dismiss anti-trust charges filed against the firm by the Justice department as "baseless in fact and unsupported by law."

The company made its stand in a formal answer to a complaint by Attorney General McGrath filed last month. Sun denied it has any "exclusive dealing" contracts with its service station outlets, as charged by McGrath.

The firm claimed it had followed a "vigorous policy of aggressive competition," in petroleum products or automotive accessories.

Many of the Justice department's anti-trust charges were based on a type of contract terminated 13 years ago, the company explained.

"There are few, if any, operators who do not handle accessories acquired otherwise than from the defendant," the company asserted.

Says Roosevelt Absent Too Much

Colleague Assails Many Absences From Congress

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(INS)—Rep. Roosevelt (D), N. Y., was criticized Monday in the House by a GOP colleague for being absent from too many sessions and for frequenting New York City night clubs.

The attack on the son of the late president was made by Rep. Brown (R) Ohio, who took the floor to accuse the Democratic-Liberal congressman of "mistaking" Brown's position on civil rights legislation. Brown said several of Roosevelt's friends had urged him not to take offense at a speech made Saturday night in New York by FDR at a Jackson Day dinner. In this speech, Brown's vote against reporting out a Civil Rights Bill from the rules committee was criticized by Roosevelt.

Brown added that he was inclined to take into consideration the fact that Roosevelt "hadn't been a member long and hadn't attended too many sessions."

The Ohioan said he had checked Roosevelt's attendance record and that the New York congressman was absent on 69 of 129 roll calls.

Then, calling on his 35 years in public life, Brown offered his colleague, who was absent from the house chamber, "a little philosophy." Brown stated:

"You just simply can't learn the rules of this House in a night club in New York."

"You just can't solve any of these great social problems that confront us by nocturnal meditations on 52nd street."

The attack by the influential Republican member, a parently widened the breach between GOP and Democratic adherents of the Fair Employment Practices Bill, which has been stalled in the House for months.

Brown said Roosevelt accused him of voting against reporting the FEPC Bill to the floor after advising the Civil Rights mobilization conference that he would do the opposite.

The Ohioan declared that he never discussed the matter with the Civil Rights group and explained that he voted "No" on the FEPC Bill only to "protect" two absent GOP colleagues and give them a chance to be recorded also.

As a result of Brown's vote a five to five tie vote resulted in blocking committee approval.

WHERE ARE THE KIDNEYS?

It used to be customary for some "patent medicine" companies to put out an almanac. It was usually a pamphlet which told about the moon and the weather.

Mostly there was a picture of an old man leaning on a cane. He was supposed to be holding his hand on his kidneys because he had backache.

His hand was not anywhere near the place where the kidneys are located but that didn't seem to make much difference.

The kidneys are located in the middle of the back just at the lower edge of the ribs. They are pretty well protected by the bones. Backache is very seldom caused by kidney trouble. There are a lot of different causes for pain in the back.

Sometimes the doctor has some trouble to find out what is the cause of the pain.

Truman's Move 'Fateful Act'

LONDON, Feb. 1.—(INS)—The London News Chronicle called President Truman's H-bomb go-ahead signal today "one of the most fateful acts in the whole of human history."

The newspaper warned editorially that "new, unremitting efforts must be made to forge effective international control over atomic energy."

The London Daily Herald headlined its story of the Truman announcement — "Work Starts on Superbomb." The Daily Express headline said "Truman Makes Momentous Decision."

In Paris, the Communist newspaper Humanite described the announcement as "one more step in preparation for a new, monstrous and bloody war."

Expert On Mars Discusses Recent Japanese Report

(A few days ago in Osaka a young Japanese astronomer reported observation of a "terrific explosion" on the planet Mars which created a cloud 900 miles wide and 60 miles high. International News Service, seeking an explanation of the phenomenon, turned to the famous Lowell observatory in Flagstaff, Ariz., founded in 1894 for the express purpose of studying the planets of the solar system and particularly Mars. Dr. E. C. Slipher, an expert on Mars, theorizes below the nature of the disturbance.)

By DR. E. C. SLIPHER
(Mars Specialist at Lowell Observatory)
(Written Expressly for U.S.S.)

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., Feb. 1.—Recent news dispatches from Tokyo announcing that a Japanese astronomer, Tsunei Seaki, had sighted on Mars a great disturbance which he assumed to be due to a violent "Volcanic explosion" would, if true, greatly alter present ideas about the planet.

If Japanese interpretation of this Martian disturbance should turn out to be correct, then it would be the first volcanic outburst ever recognized there. However, even though American astronomers were unable to witness this event, they will probably look askance at the Japanese explanation of its origin.

Cause of Deductions

Examination of the scanty details available indicate that its discoverer and his associates were led to consider the disturbance of volcanic origin partly because of its sudden appearance and partly because of its dull gray color.

But really there is nothing strange about its sudden appearance because close students of the planet are familiar with innumerable examples of Martian clouds which appeared where nothing existed the night before and which were gone again on the following night.

Neither is the color of this outburst so extraordinarily peculiar as to identify it clearly as arising from volcanic action. It is rather common knowledge among close investigators of Mars that the cloud areas which appear from time to time vary markedly in color.

It would seem then that neither the sudden appearance of this cloud on Mars nor its dull gray tinged with yellow color would be sufficient evidence to justify the conclusion that it resulted from a terrific volcanic explosion.

However, if it was of volcanic origin some trace of it should still be visible when that section of Mars turns into view of the great telescopes on this side of the world during the next few weeks.

Romaine Plans To Be Wed In American Gown

By MARTHA KEARNEY
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Friends of tall, slim Romaine Simpson say that she will wear an all-American gown designed by Mainbocher when she becomes the Marchioness of Milford Haven Saturday.

They add that the aristocratic-looking bride will not be married in a traditional wedding gown because she has been married before.

Details of the wedding gown and the ceremony itself have been kept a closely-guarded secret, but friends of the bride have revealed further that the wedding bonnet has been designed by Bragaard of New York.

Both Mrs. Simpson and her bridegroom-to-be, the dashing Marquis of Milford Haven, have been in New York since they returned from London together last October after their engagement was announced.

They are expected to stay in New York until a scant 24 hours before their wedding, scheduled for 4 p. m. (EST) Saturday at the weathered gray National Presbyterian church in Washington. The bride's mother, Mrs. Clark McIlwaine, is a social figure in the Nation's capital. The bride-to-be spent her girlhood in Boston, then attended the exclusive Foxcroft school in Middleburg, Va.

Famous Couturier

Mainbocher, designer of the wedding gown, is the famous middle-west couturier who gained international fame in Paris when he established his salon there. The Duchess of Windsor was one of the international glamor girls who found his tailored and striking gowns to their taste.

During the war Mainbocher returned to the United States and designed the chic uniforms worn by the Waves. More recently he did the dress uniform authorized for wear by Waves at official and diplomatic functions.

Meanwhile the talk of the capital is that the wedding of Romaine Dahlgren Pierce Simpson and David Mountbatten, Marquis of Milford Haven, has exceeded its original simple proportions by several hundred guests.

It is now estimated that about 700-people will be on hand to attend the most glamorous international wedding of the year. First plans called for a quiet ceremony in the apartment of the bride's mother.

PARKING TROUBLE

CHICAGO—(INS)—The days of the motorist who parked in metered space and fed the meter additional coins for overtime parking privileges may be numbered. The International City Managers' Association predicts. According to the association, a Seattle inventor recently came forward with a magnetic device which locks the meter when a car pulls up and allows only one hour's parking time. More nickels may be inserted in the meter at the end of the hour, but to no avail—the red flag will not go down again.

Around Hollywood

By FRANK NEILL

(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 1.—Ruth Roman is a girl who would rather be bad than good, but her studio bosses, unmindful of a girl's feelings, are dead set in making a sweet screen heroine out of her. "If I had my way," Miss Roman said today, looking for all the world like the nicest girl in town, "I'd be wicked from the fade-in to the fade-out."

The dark-haired young woman likes to point out that it was an evil which gave her screen career the impetus that landed her on the top of the year's "most promising" heap.

Plays Murderess

She played a murderess in "The Window," and was in a dark mood from beginning to end. Of course, she went on to the sweetness-and-light department in "Champion."

When Warners put her under contract, they started throwing the good girl roles at her right from in "Barriade," a plucky chorus the start. She's a western heroine girl in "Always Leave Them Laughing," a gentle lady from the city in "Beyond the Forest."

"And now," she said, "I'm going to be the lady-like heroine of my new picture."

Ruth's news picture is "lightning Strikes Twice." She's lady-like with Richard Todd, the sensational newcomer who wowed the film audiences with his performance in "The Hasty Heart."

Wicked women seem to have so much more fun—even on the screen—than the respectable ones, Ruth argues. "And heaven knows," she adds, "it's a lot more stimulating to act that kind of a role."

Wants Tough Role

Maybe it's her big brown eyes and soft rounded chin that lead people, especially producers and directors, to the irrevocable decision that Ruth can do no harm.

"Whatever it is," she said, "I'd like to change their minds." She's even considering dressing like Sadie Thompson or Jezebel and flinging some temperament around the lot. "But somehow," she said sadly, "I just can't bring myself to do it."

Horse Racing To Be Issue Again

General Assembly Will Face Problem Of Races Betting

HARRISBURG, Feb. 1.—(INS)—The 1951 session of the General Assembly will be faced with what probably will be the most intense campaign for enactment of legislation legalizing horse racing in Pennsylvania. The Pennsylvania Federation of Labor (AFL) and the State County Fairs association has placed its stamp of approval on pari-mutual betting. As usual, the backbone of opposition will be rooted in the rural counties often referred to in debate as the "Bible belt." The so-called big-city delegations lean toward legalized horse racing; all legislation introduced in recent sessions to authorize horse racing has come from members of the big city delegations. The only time in the past five years that a horse racing bill was allowed out of a House committee for a record vote it was defeated by a small margin. There have been various estimates of revenue which would accrue to the state each year, some yield would come from a state tax as high as $25,000,000. The yield would come from a state tax on the total amount of money passing daily through the pari-mutual betting machines.

Duff-for-Senate Republicans have been surprised at seeing State Superior Court Judge John S. Fine, of Nanticoke, present at the slatemaking sessions. Although Governor Duff wants the Luzerne county GOP boss to be his candidate for governor, the jurist is playing it safe by delaying a decision. Duff, an independent candidate for the U. S. senatorial nomination, has drawn heavily on Fine's political wisdom. Fine may shy clear of the race because he may be more content with earning $21,000 a year for the next seven years on the bench than being governor for four years at $25,000 a year.

State Highways Secretary Ray F. Smock, Crawford county Republican chairman, has an unofficial drum beater in the person of Assistant Chief Engineer C. H. Buckius. Smock, undercover pressure man for the Duff-for-Senate Republicans, goes about the state whipping up support for Governor Duff's independent bid for the nomination and is followed in a short time by Buckius who urges leaders to back Smock for governor. Smock has made no effort to keep Buckius tied to his more official duties with the department.

The State Elections bureau soon is expected to certify a vacancy in the eighth legislative district so that voters in three Philadelphia wards may choose their representative for the State House of Representatives. The special election will be held in conjunction with the May 16 primary. The vacancy resulted from the death of James J. O'Dare, Sr., last month. O'Dare entered the GOP victory over Democrats in 1938.

Deputy Attorney General Samuel Jackson is working on legislation setting up a huge Port of Philadelphia Authority. Similar legislation was defeated in the House during the 1949 session by a close vote. The legislation, supported by House whip Charles C. Smith, was regarded as faulty in many quarters—at least that was the reason given by many of the members who opposed the broad powers which would have been given the authority under the bill. Jackson's task is to take out the kinks. The fact that a deputy attorney general is handling the preparation indicates the commonwealth intends making it a part of the official program for the 1951-53 biennium.

The flame from an oxyacetylene welding torch may reach 5,500 degrees Fahrenheit, which is about half the estimated surface temperature of the sun.

Reject Proposal President Get Power To Induct Men

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(INS)—Rep. Vinson (D) Ga., rejected today an administration proposal that President Truman be empowered to induct men into the armed services in Congress' absence.

The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee termed "unsatisfactory" the compromise drawn up by Secretary of Defense Johnson, with the approval of the president and the joint chiefs of staff.

The administration is seeking a three-year extension of the draft beyond its June 24 expiration date. Originally, it asked for an extension of the existing law without change.

Vinson told Johnson he did not believe his committee would approve this. He suggested instead that the selective service organization be permitted to continue, but that there be no further inductions after June 24 without passage of a concurrent resolution by Congress.

The administration countered with the proposal that the president be given authority also to order inductions in the event an emergency occurred while Congress was not in session.

Braham Urged For Vacancy In State Court

Judge W. Walter Braham has been recommended for the vacancy on the State Supreme Court by a committee of the Pennsylvania Bar association.

It became known today that the committee on judicial procedure has submitted a list of five names to Governor James H. Duff, suggesting that either of the five would be acceptable for appointment to the supreme bench.

Some weeks ago Judge Marion D. Patterson of Blair county, a justice of the State Supreme Court, died suddenly. His death leaves a vacancy upon the bench which can be filled by Governor Duff until the next general election, which will be in November.

Friends of the bench and bar in other counties have urged that Judge Braham be given the appointment, and his selection as one of five possibilities over the state is an indication of his standing in the legal fraternity.

Governor Duff has given no indication as to whether or not he will fill the vacancy before the May primary. If he does, the one appointed would undoubtedly run as a candidate for the full term, which is 21 years.

Trucks Held Up In Berlin Blockade

BERLIN, Feb. 1.—(INS)—An estimated 150 trucks waited today at the Helmstedt checkpoint in the continued Russian "little blockade" of Berlin.

Berlin-bound trucks were passing through Helmstedt at the rate of five to six an hour, compared with the usual 20 to 30. There was a constant backlog of 100 Berlin-bound trucks.

Six west-bound trucks were moving through the checkpoint each hour, with a backlog of 50.

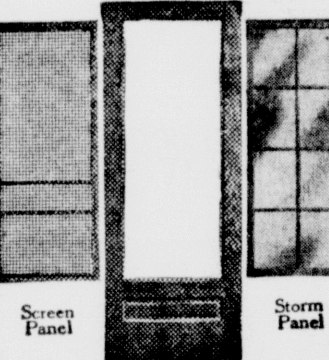

It was the second day of the resumed blockade, after a one-day respite.

The Face on the Barroom Floor was that of a woman supposedly scrawled there by a dying bum as the picture of the siren who had caused his downfall.

An English philosopher wants to rewrite Mother Goose on less bloodthirsty lines. For example, he says that the little about the three blind mice who had their tails cut off by the farmer's wife with a carving knife is too sadistic. But a mouse is too small for the poet to say it was blown up by an atom bomb, which is the weapon the children are mostly interested in nowadays.

White Says County, City, Township May Contribute Funds

Delegation of North Mercer street property owners conferred Tuesday afternoon with Streets Director E. Gene Schweinsberg, relative to a proposal to improve by paving, North Mercer street, north of Sheridan avenue.

When City Solicitor Robert White was asked as to his opinion regarding proposed paving, he told a News reporter:

"In my opinion, the city, county, and township, each may contribute to the cost of the paving, inasmuch as it is a main thoroughfare."

"This would decrease the cost to the abutting property-owners."

"The project could be done in part, say, between Sheridan avenue and Glenmore boulevard this year, and a part of the work could be done each year."

Model Village Shows Unusual Workmanship

Would you enjoy a trip right now to some quiet, quiet village? Somewhere where you could relax and really have fun? Well, there is such a place, and it's not too far from here—right at the foot of Big Bear mountain. What, never heard of Big Bear mountain? Maybe I'm just confusing you more, so I'd better explain.

Jack West of the Harlansburg road, R. D. 4, has just such a village as I've been telling you about. In the third floor of his home can be found a miniature village and four model trains in operation. Mr. West began his "model village" on January 5, 1948. He thought that in his spare time he would begin working with trains as a hobby. His ideas kept expanding and soon he needed help. So he asked his nephew, Billy West, and a friend, Pearce Shuler, for aid.

Many Details

Train tracks were laid, and all the details of a station, switches, crossings and other phases of the industry were considered and planned. These three worked long, sometimes tiresome hours, in order that they could perfect their work. Ideas came to them as they went along. A type of a manhole was constructed in the center of the 9 by 13 foot platform so that they could work on sections not easily reached from the sides.

It wasn't long before things began to take shape, and the little village started to grow. Big Bear mountain sprang up in the back corner, and out of it came an underground stream, the El Mirage. This flowed into Pleasant Valley, a lovely region of rolling land.

Let's take a train at Eureka Springs, the village, and see what we can of the country. On our right may be found West's garage. To the left is the main section of town, with its rows of stores and local theater. The white steeple of a church gleams in the sun. Couples can be found talking in the cool greenness of the park. Children and dogs play above. Leaving the Westler (West and Shuler) station, we are ready to continue our trip. Large factories are seen in the distance. The train stops at a water tank for a drink. As we pull into the freight station to unload merchandise, we can see the workers in the factory at our left. Smoke, pouring from the chimneys, is proof of the high production of the factory. Looking from our window, we can see men carrying cans of milk from the refrigerator car. Milk which will supply the village of Eureka. Once again we are on the move! We stop soon at the lumber yard to unload the materials which will help the industries and town grow, and will really leave the town behind. On either side of us we see vast stretches of farmland. The house stands at one side of the farm, and seems to be watching all that goes on about it. The large barn and healthy animals in the fields are evidence that the farmer is ambitious and prosperous. Men can be seen baling hay in the fields.

The train goes on and we are rather reluctant to leave a pleasant sight behind us. But we must continue our journey. In and out around, the train rushes along. Like a giant worm it glides through the country. We must go on, but will still have memories of the village and farms we left behind. Why don't you, too, visit Pleasant Valley?

Explain Construction
One would have to see this project to really appreciate it, and the amount of work that has been put into it. The trio made the "Big Bear mountain" by putting plaster over screen and then sprinkling artificial grass over it. Rocks, appearing in the mountain, came from Colorado. The miniature trees and grass were obtained from California. Wooden bridges have been made by hand and placed over the streams. Everything is in scale, down to the smallest people used. Even a miniature mailbox and fireplug can be found. Small bales of hay were made for the farm scene. The wire of the pig pen is of fine silk thread, with the fence posts being dyed in coffee for the exact color desired. All the houses and buildings used came in a flat form and had to be assembled. There is one church used that took five evenings to finish. This should be proof of the tedious work that was done by these men.

Three large electric trains were in operation with others standing off to one side. The fourth train which was running is one that Billy West had as a child. One can see that the "West and Shuler" railroad has been carefully planned and thought out by seeing the intricate mechanism used to operate these trains.

Most people have a hobby of some sort, but few have such an unusual or interesting hobby as does this trio of R. D. 4.

Young Boy Admits He Wounded Girl

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—(INS)—A 13-year-old boy who admitted the schoolroom shooting of a girl classmate told suburban Winnetka police today he had intended to kill her and himself because she broke up his romance with another girl.

Investigators said Couthorne (Copp) Mac Donald, member of a prominent North Shore family, told them his murder-suicide plan was ruined when Nancy Penfield, also 13, ran out of the room into which he had lured her. Nancy, daughter of Henry D. Penfield, former Evanston mayor, was reported in serious condition with a bullet wound in her neck. "Copp," according to police, blamed Nancy for "ruining" his romance by telling his unnamed "best girl" of improper suggestions he had made to the wounded girl.

EATING FOR GOOD TEETH

Dentists still disagree as to what is most important if one wants to have good teeth. Some stress brushing, others point out that it's largely heredity that determines whether or not teeth hold up well. But they all feel that food is important.

It is essential that there be plenty of "chewy" foods—raw vegetables such as cabbage, carrots and celery; fruit, whole grains and nuts.

It isn't primarily the chewing quality of such foods, though that's important. It is also the fact that they have the vitamins that make for healthy teeth. It has even been shown that a diet made up of the above foods and including cod liver oil, milk, butter, cream and eggs, will actually check decay and harden the areas around the decayed spots.

Recently the use of fluoride and other chemical solutions has become popular. Tooth paste with "protective chemicals added" is on our drugstore counters. Such treatment may prove itself valuable. Dentists are carefully experimenting. But nothing can take the place of good, wholesome foods if we want our children to have healthy teeth.

IN THE OPEN

Suddenly it's February once more. The countryman, bemused by a record-breaking January which sent him perspiring through the woodlands, after a weekend, faces the unpredictable days that lie ahead with his fingers crossed. Month of Winter, month of early Spring, or month of transition, fickle February can turn on the heat or pour on the wintry blasts. Not even the groundhog knows the score this topsy-turvy year.

At one time February had a comfortable quota of 30 days, just as any other respectable month in the old Roman calendar. Then along came Julius Caesar to steal one day so as to add to the length and importance of the seventh month, which he named for himself. February again was a soft touch for Caesar Augustus, who gave his name to the ninth month and could not let Julius have the better of him by one day. But in the suspense of the 28 days left, February takes a back seat to no one else on the same calendar.

Voice of Sparrow

The voice of the song sparrow is heard these cheery chanters at some time or other in every month, but this year, despite the balmy, misty mornings they love so well, the almost completely snubbed January. From my back porch overlooking the valley, I sat in on an early morning concert which included mood music by the song sparrows, the poignant love song of the chickadees, the loud whistling of the titmouse, with even one cardinal, somewhat out of practice, oiling up his rusty pipes.

The day before I had made a quick traverse across the thicketed hillside edging the wide reservoir which serves the nearby city. The ceiling closed in about 3 o'clock and I blundered ahead through a murky mist that just couldn't make up its mind to rain. One solitary canvasback rode the choppy surface of the dam. He will have to back track to the Chesapeake if the weather turns and locks up the inland ponds.

The footing was soggy along that hillside. My boots kept adding to their loot of sticky clay until the extra weight made me shift to second gear. To add to the general discomfort a small twig broke off a thorn bush, worked its way down into one of the knee boots, and practiced stiletto tactics on my heel. I know exactly how Achilles felt when Paris' arrow found the vulnerable mark.

Unseasonable Weather

To further point up the unseasonal weather I saw two kites aloft. One was performing proudly, with the inevitable small boy fast to the end of its anchor cord. The other was banging itself to pieces in the upper reaches of a lofty elm, where it had come on evil days. A pair of blue jeans tearing down the roadway ahead of the car resolved themselves into a lad on roller skates.

To add to the nostalgic humor of the long January "thaw," I burned over a piece of sod ground hardly the house soaking myself in the heavenly fragrance of the flaming tussocks until I was as well smoked as the best Virginia ham.

One of the joys of February is the annual spate of legendary lore concerning the weather-wise doings of Mr. Arctonys Monax, the ground hog. Candlemas Day belongs to the whistlegig. None other of the Seven Sleepers of our countryside has achieved such eminence. Some day perhaps even the banks and public offices will properly recognize the importance of Ground Hog Day by declaring it a legal holiday.

February 2 Fiction

The Hoosier poet, back in the days when filling the woodbox was a chore indeed to the country lad, knew well how these young stalwarts felt about the woodchuck and the February 2nd fiction. Said he—

"Nothin' ever made me madder Than for Pap to stomp in, layin' On an extra fore-stick, sayin' Groundhog's out and seed his shadder!"

When the groundhog decides to make his home in the cultivated fields he can become a real pest, but his burrows a menace to livestock. Farmers say that he eats to get strength enough to dig, and then digs to work up an appetite to eat. This ties him down to a vicious circle of eating and digging and digging and eating.

As to his ability as a weather seer, so long as whimsical superstition is thoroughly in harmony with human nature who knows where his talents lie? There is no doubt that he does come out of his burrow on a warm February day and looks around, as his tracks prove; but he is not interested in his shadow. What he comes out to look for is the future Mrs. Wood-chuck, and when he finds her he goes in again.

SASSY FRASS.

Asks $250,000 For False Imprisonment

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—(INS)—James Montgomery, who spent 26 of his 54 years in prison for a crime that "never occurred," today asked $250,000 damages in Illinois court of claims.

In an action filed against the state, Attorney Luis Kutner called attention to the poverty stricken status of Montgomery and said he has been unable to find employment since last August when he was released on a habeas corpus action.

Montgomery was sentenced to life in prison at Waukegan in 1924, on a charge of criminally attacking Mamie Snow, then 62. A physician who was not called to testify at the trial revealed later that an examination of Miss Snow did not bear out the charge.

Officials In Charge

Officials are in complete charge of a basketball game once that game has got underway.

That is one of the main points cleared up at the meeting of the WPIAL decisions committee Monday night in Pittsburgh.

The question arose Monday when the committee, representatives of East Brook and Wampum high schools and officials of the East Brook-Wampum game on January 13 were discussing the conditions that led to the protesting of the game by East Brook.

The point was stressed by the committee that the officials of the contest have the right to stop the game at any time that conditions make it unsafe to continue—whether it be because of a wet floor, fog, unruly spectators or any number of reasons.

Members of the committee went on to say that the coaches do not have the right to call off a game once it has been started if the officials say to go on. The officials are the final judge.

In the case of the Wampum-East Brook game, the officials did not stop the game and therefore the game remained as played.

Decision to Leader

If at any time the game is stopped because of reasons beyond the control of the home team and half or over half of the game has been played, the decision will be given to the team that is leading at the time the game is called, the decisions committee ruled.

The committee went on to state that anytime a game is called because of the conduct of the spectators the game may be forfeited to the visiting team by the officials.

It also stated that the home team is responsible for the safety of the officials and the visiting team and should any harm come to either the home team is held responsible. Failure to protect the visiting team or officials from irate fans has usually resulted in suspension from the WPIAL.

Throughout the course of a half-game an official has to make decisions on many points and, right or wrong, his decision sticks—if he has not violated a rule in making his decision.

In neither of the cases concerning Lawrence county teams had the officials violated a rule—at least not visibly so.

Lawrence county was well represented at the meeting with all four coaches concerned—Glen Matthews, Bob Eagleson, Frank Webster and Butler Hennon—present, as well as principals, Ralph Watson, Walt Whitman and S. G. McCullough. Officials present were John Polenick, Ray Kelly and Hebe.

Only two other cases—both on eligibility—were considered at the meeting.

County Leaguers To Meet Feb. 14

Baseball Group Meeting Tonight

New Castle Must Decide Tonight On Course In Mid-Atlantic

New Castle's future in the Mid-Atlantic league will be decided tonight at the New Penn hotel, when general chairman Al Scarazzo and his business men group meet to raise the money necessary to buy the local franchise from the Erie Indians.

The meeting is set for 7:30. The New Castle group last week raised over $13,000 for purchasing the franchise, but another $12,000 will be necessary for operating expenses.

Cards Are Ready

Secretary Anthony Conn has had pledge cards for shares of $10 each made by the printer and will be distributed at the meeting. Any one caring to help raise the necessary funds is invited to the meeting.

Elmer Daily, president of the Middle-Atlantic league, was to have been present tonight for the meeting but called from his home in Ebensburg this morning to say that a heavy snow had made travel out of the question.

Daily wants a concrete answer from New Castle tonight, so that he can secure if necessary an eighth team in the league now that Uniontown has dropped out. Niagara Falls is a strong bidder for the eighth spot.

George Washington Beats Sharon; Union And Mahoning Lose

George Washington picked up where Benjamin Franklin left off and knocked off the ex-league leading Sharon Little Tigers at Washington Tuesday afternoon 29-25.

The Tigers had been undefeated this year until they met Franklin Friday and have now dropped two straight to Lawrence county teams.

In other Section 17 Junior WPIAL games Franklin defeated Union 35-13 and Mahoning dropped one to Butler 43-33.

The Little Presidents of Washington knocked Sharon right out of first place and improved their own chances for the league crown. Joe Lane again paced Washington with 16 points and King led Sharon with nine.

Franklin ran into trouble at Union on the Patriots' floor and moved into a tie with Sharon for second place in the league. Tarnoci was high scorer for Franklin with 14 points, followed by Cook with 10. Ronnie Gall led Union with six.

Mahoning ran into trouble at Butler and came out on the short end of a 43-33 ball game. Carmen Russo led the Mahoning scorers with nine points followed by Don Runyon with eight. Whann and Minto led Butler with 11 and 10 points respectively.

Farrell was idle and took over undisputed possession of first place.

New York Yankees Sign Two Pitchers

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(INS)—The New York Yankees announced the signing today of two pitchers who should be 1950 headliners if they begin to pay off on the club's investment in them.

Fred Sanford, purchased from the St. Louis Browns for $100,000 prior to last season, and bonus rookie Paul Hirtz were the latest Yankees to sign.

Farrell Trims New Castle High, 63-35, In Section Three

FARRELL FATTENS SECTIONAL LEAD IN TUESDAY GAME

Farrell High fattened its leadership hold on Section Three last night by drubbing New Castle's "Redless" five at the spacious Farrell High court 63 to 35.

It was win No. 7 for the Steelers without a defeat and they are the top possessors of the top rung with their neighbors from Sharon clinging on like leeches to second place with six wins and one defeat, that to Farrell last Tuesday, 44-36.

At no time last night did New Castle cause any qualms in Farrell. It was 17 to 1 in the first period and at the half 33 to 19.

Third Period Rout

New Castle was held field goal-less the third period to trail by the miserable count of 43 to 22. In the final period New Castle picked up a little steam and managed to get 13 points, but Farrell got 20 more.

Joe Marcelli, playing at center in place of the injured Captain Reed, was high man on the totem pole with 11 points for New Castle, followed by Ray Latsko with five. Vitale, Carbone and Cook had four apiece.

Joe DeLise with 19 and Marion Lampkins with nine were high for Farrell with Julius McCoy and Juback each having eight points. New Castle made 15 out of 19 tries. Farrell made 13 out of 19 efforts, both teams sparkling in this respect.

Farrell had previously defeated New Castle at the Washington High court 57 to 48.

Ambridge Here Friday

New Wilmington Edges Union, 61-57

New Wilmington came from behind to defeat Union 61-57 at New Wilmington Tuesday night.

For the second time this year the Steelers got off to an early lead only to have the Greyhounds catch up and pass them before the final whistle blew.

Union led 19-6 at the end of the first quarter and held the lead for three quarters until a savage New Wilmington rally in the final frame.

Hutchinson High

Tom Hutchinson again was the big scoring gun for the Greyhounds, hitting from inside and outside and from the left or right. He and Walt McGinnis were responsible for 47 of the New Wilmington points.

Frank Presnar played the game that has been expected of him all season and put in 20 points for the Steelers. Dick Pitzer provided additional scoring punch with 17 points.

In the preliminary game the New Wilmington JV's came out on top 30-28. Jara led New Wilmington with 10 points. Criswell was high for Union.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

JACK STOCKMAN of the Oakland Sportsman's club, today took issue with John W. Brown, R. D. 9, who advocates the cleaning of, and making of a public fishing lake of the old Cement dam. In Brown's communication, he alleged that Cascade Park lake is drained too often, and some times is polluted, hence he inferred, it would not 'do' for a public fishing place. Stockman says Cascade Park lake has not been drained for some time, and if it were, a screen could keep fish within the lake, when it is drained. He also claims the lake is free of pollution. The club stocked it with pan fish recently. Here & There has a New York City reader, Neville T. Cruise, 347 West 49th street, New York, who requested the home address of George and Joe Chip, and Al McCoy, the first and last named, former middleweight champions. George lives at 108 Phillips Place, New Castle. Joe resides at 605 Arch street, Pottsville, and McCoy is either a resident of Hollywood or Los Angeles. Mail addressed to McCoy, in care of Sue Welch, night club operator, Los Angeles, would probably reach McCoy. Henry Rodgers, president, Lawrence County Council of sportsmen, wants the presidents of all outdoor sports organizations to meet with him at the Y. Friday night. Banquet plans will be discussed. Dutch Howlett and Suni Warcloud, a second Don Eagle, are matched for their February 10 grappling exhibition here, as closely as it is possible to mate wrestlers. Howlett stands 6-4 and weighs 229. Warcloud stands 6-4½ and weighs 229. There will be scenes bordering on the hysterical when the three exhibitions are staged, especially in the Tag rumpus. Low attendance at Ellwood City fights, last Saturday night, was due, according to some, to the keeping open of stores. According to letters received by Here & There, this column is read by people in different parts of the country. Here & There would like to know the name of the reader, living farthest away, who reads the column.

John (Jiggers) Fonzena, former local boy, who served with the Army in the Pacific, during WWII, writes from 241 McAdam Street, Oakland, Calif., mentioning that, Frank George, former News employee, is employed on the Oakland Tribune. Further, Jiggers says: "Tell the fans that Ezzard Charles and Joe Louis didn't beat 'anybody' when they knocked out Pat Valentino. I witnessed both fights. I predict that Sugar Costner will stop 'Sugar Ray' Robinson." Boxing is to be resumed in Pittsburgh's Aragon Gardens, February 6, with Jimmy Sanders, Youngstown, battling Mike Kohalla, Pittsburgh, at 148, in the main event. Bill Dummer, who sells paint to local merchants, is the promoter. William S. Haddock, president and Sue Taylor, secretary, of the A. A. U., has forwarded to the Jefferson A. C. an active membership in the organization, which means the club has a license to promote amateur athletic events, including boxing. Ernie Hill, former middleweight, attended a meeting of the Shenandoah Valley Veteran Boxers association, of which Here & There is a member, Saturday night. In an effort to interest people in planting forest trees, Seth Meyers, secretary of the Northwest division, State Federation of Sportsmen, writes that the State has issued a booklet, "Forest Trees To Plant In Pennsylvania". The booklet points out in various ways, how it pays to plant trees for the future. Some years ago, President Judge W. Walter Brahm, et al., were interested in such a project.

Judge Braham Discusses Constitutional Revision

(Pennsylvania's Constitution effective in 1874 has been criticized in recent years for what some jurists and Constitutional lawyers consider to be inconsistencies in the light of present-day problems. International News Service asked an outstanding expert on Constitutional revision, Lawrence County President Judge W. Walter Braham, to outline his views of the subject.)

By W. WALTER BRAHAM
(President Judge of the Lawrence County Court and Chairman of the Constitutional Revision Committee of the Pennsylvania Bar Association.)

Should the Pennsylvania constitution of 1874 be revised in whole or in part? Because a constitution is seventy-six years old is no reason for changing it, if on the other hand it no longer truly reflects the fundamental law it should be changed. The excessive length of a constitution, the infelicity of phrases, and the inadequacy of some provisions are not good reasons for wholesale constitutional revision. Indiscriminate meddling with the constitution should be avoided. Decisions of the courts of last resort have interpreted every important clause. The constitution thus interpreted has been acted upon; decisions have been made and institutions have grown up in reliance thereon; the whole makes up a social fabric not lightly to be disturbed.

Change Advocated

When the structure of our government is considered, the most fundamental change which is being currently advocated is the new method of selecting judges known as the Pennsylvania Plan. This is a modification of the Missouri Plan which aims to utilize the best features of the appointive and the elective system of selecting judges. The consolidation of all the courts into one court of judicature, with trial and appellate branches is another modern system often advocated.

Contrary to recent reports neither the constitutional committee of the Pennsylvania Bar Association nor anyone else has advocated abolition of the office of justice of the peace. It is a necessary and should be a most honorable office. Justices of the peace cannot, however, be expected to be exemplars of ideal justice when litigants are free to take their business to that justice who is most friendly and when the justice gets his pay from fees.

In the legislative field the constitutional provisions requiring the General Assembly to meet on the first Tuesday of January and a new governor to take office on the third Tuesday of January should be changed. Since 1874 the budget system has developed. It is physically impossible for a new governor to have his budget bills ready before the middle of March. In the meantime the General Assembly has been meeting and adjourning and perhaps earning a reputation as a "do nothing legislature." The requirement that each bill be read at length for three days is out of date and is never complied with. Other more fundamental changes such as the establishment of a legislature of one house should be carefully examined.

Pennsylvania has eight executive officers mentioned in the constitution. Would it not be better to place the executive power in the governor and to give him power to appoint the others with the consent of the Senate? This is the plan of the United States constitution.

Put to Practical Test

A constitution may be put to a practical test by inquiring whether current problems can be readily handled under its terms. Two examples will suffice. The greatest social phenomenon of the last seventy-five years has been the growth of cities. Now that cities have reached enormous size and require vast sums of money, people want to live outside the cities and yet get the benefit from them. The constitution of 1874 forbids special legislation. Perhaps legislation with respect to municipalities should be special and perhaps the restraints of the constitution should be loosened at this point.

Within government itself the greatest development in the last seventy-five years has been the development of boards, commissions and authorities to expedite the handling of governmental business. Yet the constitution does not even contain a general authorization to regulate utilities and contains a positive prohibition against delegation by the General Assembly. To any special commission, private corporation or association of any power to make, supervise or interfere with any municipal government property or the like.

The right of the people to have the surface of the earth from destruction, to husband vanishing forests and other material resources, to cleanse and utilize the streams, the rights of labor and the right to regulate labor—these and many more demand attention. The constitution should be reexamined in the light of a new day and new problems.

X-Ray Treatment Of Boils Hailed By Boston Medic

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—(INS)—Use of X-rays in the treatment of boils and carbuncles was hailed Tuesday by a Boston physician as being as effective as the new "miracle" drugs.

Dr. Frederick W. O'Brien, writing in the current issue of Radiology, published by the Radiological Society of North America, said that X-rays, in addition to being curative also are effective pain killers. He said: "The importance of X-rays as an analgesic (pain killer) has become so convincing, through the successful relief of pain in such afflictions as boils, carbuncles, bursitis and certain types of bone disease, that the radiation therapist is impelled to make treatment of them current practice."

"Spaced treatments judiciously applied will, in the majority of cases, bring prompt relief from pain."

He explained that X-rays relieve pain by reducing infection and this allowing the tissues surrounding the affected area to ease its stretched condition.

Dr. O'Brien said that out of 130 patients hospitalized with severe carbuncles, 60 who received only X-ray treatment were relieved of pain in from three to nine hours.

Good Question For Army Engineers

CLEVELAND — (INS) — If an Army engineer appears on a radio quiz program, the $64 question to ask him might be:

Why has the level of Lake Erie fallen nearly two feet in the last two years?

"There has been a lot of speculation and theories advanced," said R. B. Perry, engineer in charge of the Great Lakes division, corps of engineers, "but no one has yet found an acceptable answer."

There are those who cling to the earth-tilting theory: As the earth tilts one way and then another, the lake outlets are raised and lowered, allowing water to run out and then flow back in, thus changing the level.

Or, there's the unusual explanation given by an engineer that the lake is fed via an underground passage from the polar regions ice caps melted and thus raised the lake levels, he claimed.

But all the engineers' corps would say is that Lake Erie is exactly 1.73 feet lower at present than it was in Sept. 1947.

Construct Rubber Balloon Buildings

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Huge rubber balloon buildings, big enough to cover a 10-room house and strong enough to support a 3-ton load of snow and ice, are being made by the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co.

The beamless igloos, known as Radomes, will be used by the Air Force to house ground radar installations. They are 33 feet in diameter, 35 feet high and have no internal structural support.

Supported by air pressure instead of pillars, posts or arches the balloons can be inflated with an ordinary household vacuum cleaner.

Pennsylvania Railroad Adds 500 Box Cars

HARRISBURG, Feb. 1.—(INS)—More than 500 large box cars specially equipped to handle package merchandise have been installed by the Pennsylvania Railroad to insure faster freight service, Executive Walter Franklin said Tuesday.

In addition 3,000 large capacity containers for use on flat cars will be put on the railway system. Franklin said the line is augmenting its door-to-door pick-up service by extending the truck service to communities surrounding large cities.

Altoona Woman Has 100th Birthday Today

ALTOONA, Pa., Feb. 1.—(INS)—Mrs. Helen Cordelia Buchanan will celebrate her one hundredth birthday in Altoona today. She has lived in Altoona since 1873.

Farmer Not Liable For Foot Crushed By 'Vicious' Heifer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(INS)—A vicious heifer is a rarity indeed. That was the decision of District Judge Raymond B. Keech, who decided that Gentleman Farmer Arnold B. McKee was not responsible (to the tune of $50,000 for the crushed foot of Alan Shane, teenage son of Morris Shane, working farmer on Gentleman Farmer McKee's Maryland farm. Keech ruled that when McKee's heifer stepped on Alan's foot, the animal was just playful and not vicious. Therefore no damages.

WHO TAKES OVER?

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Feb. 1.—(INS)—An American Government class at Waynesburg high school was asked to answer "who takes over if the President of the United States and also the Vice President would die?"

"The undertaker," one bright student wrote on his semester exam paper.

Up until July 24, 1866, the American flag was made of English-manufactured bunting.

Four Are Drowned As German Steamer Sinks

HAMBURG, Feb. 1.—(INS)—Four men were drowned Tuesday and four are missing in the sinking of the 743-ton German steamer Fildamus in the North Sea north of Wilhelmshaven. Eight were rescued by the British tug Rumania and four bodies were recovered by the Swedish steamer Svenskund. The Fildamus was en route to Antwerp.
